

GREELEY

The Greeley Wildlife Area is located 10 miles north and 5 miles east of Tribune, in Greeley County. It was obtained in 1990 as a 50-year conservation easement to supply public hunting in an area lacking such recreation. The easement will remain in effect until the year 2039, at which time the land will return to the heirs of the former estate. The area is only open to public access from September 1 through January 31.

This public hunting area consists of 900 acres of CRP grasslands and dry creek bottom flanked by native shortgrass prairie.

Ten acres of the property that make up the homesite, barns, and corral are not part of the easement and are not open to public hunting. Hunters are asked to heed signs and boundaries and not trespass on the homesite..

HUNTING

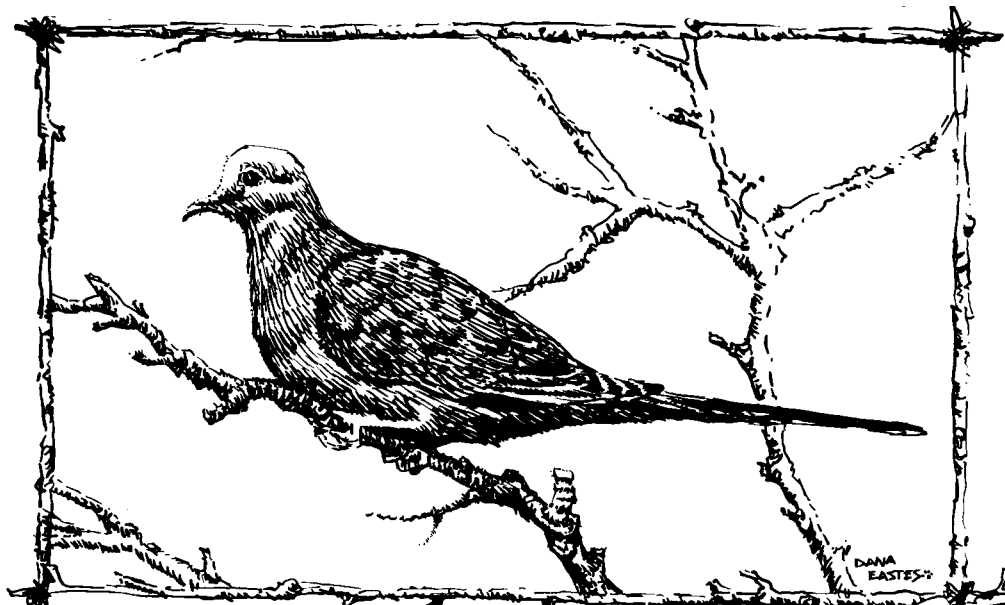

Game species that may be found on this property include white-tailed deer, mule deer, ring-necked pheasant, cottontail rabbit, jackrabbit, mourning dove, and
